LOGLINE

In a divided industrial world poisoned by an extraterrestrial substance that mutates life itself, a young warrior raised to believe his power is a disease discovers he was engineered by the very system that exploits it. When that system sacrifices the last person who kept him human, a myth is born — one that no longer distinguishes between justice and destruction.

THE WORLD

Nectar is an extraterrestrial parasite introduced by meteorites. Raw, it mutates ecosystems irreversibly. Refined, it grants eternal youth — a privilege the Crystal (the elite city) maintains in secret. The Rust (the industrial outskirts) survives among steam, patched metal and mutated creatures. The world appears stable. That stability depends on a system built on sacrifice.

CHARACTERS

KAIN

Warrior raised believing his power is a terminal illness. A bracelet supposedly keeps him alive. Code: neutralize, never kill. Only lowers his guard with Mira.

ILLARA

Kain's older sister. The only person who knows the truth: the bracelet is a containment system. Architect of the lie. Feels every activation through a connected medallion.

MIRA

6 years old. Her presence physically stabilizes Kain's bracelet. Neither of them knows why.

ROVAN

The group's strongest fighter. Loyal and direct.

JAREK

Optimistic strategist. Unknowingly feeding information to the Crystal.

MILO

The engineer who built Kain's containment system. Believes it's medical.

ANTAGONISTS

LORD VANE

Ideological architect of the Crystal. Sacrifice is simply part of the process.

THE CAPTAIN

The Crystal's enforcer. Led the operation that destroyed the refuge. Fears the power he cannot control.
